Music School Monthly Report
January, 1951

January, being the last month of the winter term, brings the inevitable semester examinations and recital nearer; and as such calls forth much activity on the students' part in preparation. This is evident in sudden concentration upon recital pieces in the popular practice rooms and cramming of small details during the eleventh hour just before the examinations.

Registration time brought quite a few new students and even more inquiries. A number of non-paying adult students were absorbed into paying classes. This may not have made a difference in the enrollment figure^{*} but will make a definite difference in our receipts figures. The number of enrollees dropped are all non-paying students with the exception of one.

The G Clef Club spent one afternoon in taking inventory of song books and text books. It was a tremendous job and one that is greatly appreciated considering the hours of work that are involved and the fact that time for such work could scarcely be found in an already full schedule of the school staff.

Respectfully submitted,

Dorothy Chun
